

CONTENTS

Preface – Ban Ki-moon, UN Secretary-General	p.7
Introduction – An Abolitionist’s Perspective, Ivan Šimonović	p.9
Chapter 1 – Wrongful Convictions	p.23
• Kirk Bloodsworth, Without DNA evidence I’d still be behind bars	p.24
• Brandon Garrett, DNA evidence casts light on flaws in system	p.30
• Gil Garcetti, In the United States, growing doubts about the death penalty	p.39
• Saul Lehrfreund, Wrongful convictions and miscarriages of justice in death penalty trials in the Caribbean, Africa and Asia	p.48
Chapter 2 – Myth of Deterrence	p.67
• Carolyn Hoyle & Roger Hood, Deterrence and public opinion	p.68
Chapter 3 – Discrimination	p.85
• Damien Echols, The terrors of prison fade slowly	p.87
• Stephen Braga, Damien Echols and the West Memphis Three Case	p.91
• Steve Bright, Imposition of the death penalty upon the poor, racial minorities, the intellectually disabled and the mentally ill	p.99
• Arif Bulkan, The death penalty in the Commonwealth Caribbean: Justice out of reach?	p.114
• Usha Ramanathan, The death penalty in India: Down a slippery slope	p.134
• Alice Mogwe, The death penalty in Botswana: Barriers to equal justice	p.154
• Innocent Maja, The death penalty in Zimbabwe: Legal ambiguities	p.164
Chapter 4 – Values	p.169
• Mario Marazziti, World religions and the death penalty	p.170
• Paul Bhatti, Towards a moratorium on the death penalty	p.182
Chapter 5 – Trends and Perspectives	p.189
• Salil Shetty, Global death penalty trends since 2012	p.190
• Federico Mayor, Leadership and the abolition of the death penalty	p.297
Acknowledgements	p.212