

Index

- Page 13 — Introduction: A Case for Migrant-Inclusive Disaster Risk Reduction
- Page 19 — Refugee Inclusion in Earthquake Casualty Estimation: A Case Study in South-East Turkey
- Page 24 — Using Open Data to Improve Inclusive Disaster Risk Reduction in Barangay Humilog in the Philippines
- Page 29 — The Diversity Advantage Is the Answer How Local Partnerships and Engagement Contribute to Disaster Risk Reduction
- Page 33 — We Are Human Too! Concern Worldwide's Efforts to Reduce Risks for the Homeless Migrants of Dhaka, Bangladesh
- Page 38 — Resilient Together: Engaging the Knowledge and Capacities of Refugees for a Disaster Resilient Illawarra
- Page 42 — Multilingual Disaster Support Volunteer Training in Japan: Participant Observation of Methods and Practice in Toyama Prefecture
- Page 47 — Empowered Action during Disasters: Disaster Preparedness among Migrant Farmworker Communities in the United States
- Page 53 — Integrating Migrant and Seasonal Farmworkers in Disaster Response and Relief Efforts
- Page 57 — Including Migrants in Germany's Federal Agency for Technical Relief
- Page 60 — Engaging Migrant Domestic Workers in an Emergency: The Case of Lebanon
- Page 64 — Migrants in Disaster Risk Reduction: American Red Cross of Chicago and Northern Illinois
- Page 68 — A Land of Flooding Rains: Building the Disaster Resilience of Asylum Seekers at High Risk
- Page 72 — Disaster Risk Management in Socioculturally Diverse Societies: An Example of a Two-Fold Training Approach from Germany
- Page 77 — Migrants in the 2011 Floods in Thailand: Improving Migrants' Access to Emergency and Rescue Services
- Page 81 — Thailand: Improving Coordination to Better Assist Migrants in Emergencies
- Page 85 — Challenges in Implementing Measures to Adequately Protect Migrants in Emergencies in Mexico
- Page 89 — Community Language Information Network Group
- Page 94 — Refugee Resettlement and Disaster Risk Reduction
- Page 100 — Empowering Migrant Communities: A Step towards Inclusive Disaster Risk Reduction and Recovery
- Page 104 — Immigration in Montserrat after the Volcanic Disaster: A Tool and a Challenge for the Recovery of the Island
- Page 110 — Conclusion
- Page 115 — Further reading
- Page 120 — Bios