Acknowledgements

This book has been in process for several years and a great number of people have contributed to its completion. To all of them who have helped to bring it into being I wish to express my gratitude.

Most particularly I would like to thank the librarians at: the Faculty of Law in Uppsala, the Dag Hammarskjöld Library, the Library at Harvard Law School, the Library of Congress in Washington D.C. and the Library of the Max-Planck-Institut für öffentliches Recht und Völkerrecht in Heidelberg for patient responses to many queries and for invaluable help.

I also wish to thank Mark Boseley and Kjell Eriksson for suggesting a number of very useful linguistic alterations and making editorial comments.

I owe much to the financial support from the Swedish Council for Research in the Humanities and Social Sciences and the Emil Heijnes Stiftelse.
